

Store opening soon

Written by Steve Hildinger

Saturday, 22 June 2013 02:03 - Last Updated Saturday, 22 June 2013 02:27

After a period of silence, we're posting something again :) We got some new inventory in as well as the computer parts to get a server setup for our online store. The online store has almost been complete. We are working on finishing the pictures for them and testing out all parts of it to make sure everything works properly. To start off we will be accepting payments through PayPal or Dwolla. We will likely be offering a slight discount if you use Dwolla, so if you don't have an account you should set one up now at the Dwolla website . It takes a couple days to verify your bank account to use it, but they are the preferable option. Hard work is being done on the store to complete, we hope to have it up and running soon. Until then, we still offer RepRaps if ontacted directly c for $800+shipping. We will also work with you to make sure everything is setup and running properly when you get it if you would like.